The Mummy Project at the Nicholson Museum

The Mummy Project is a cross-disciplinary and multi-institution research project investigating four Egyptian mummies and three coffins held by the Nicholson Museum.

This informal symposium is a forum for project researchers to present the current state of their ongoing research as part of the broader project. Each “short talk” is 10 mins, with a few minutes for questions.

This research will inform a dedicated Mummy Room, to be unveiled in the new Chau Chak Wing Museum at the University of Sydney in July 2020. Researchers will also contribute to the exhibition book Speak My Name: Four Egyptian Mummies in Sydney, to be published by Sydney University Press.

Anyone is welcome to attend.
